Foreword
to the Green Army of the NDC

Comrades,
The results of 7th December 2024, which saw our then Flagbearer, His Excellency John Dramani Mahama, and his Vice-Presidential Candidate, Professor Naana Jane Opoku-Agyemang, secure a historic victory, offer one of the greatest political lessons for multiparty democracy in Ghana. The decisive support of the youth at the polls confirmed that the new Ghanaian youth will not compromise on accountable and responsible governance. The Ghanaian youth is impatient, conscious of their power, and ready to demand what is due them.

It is barely 22 months since the NDC assumed office, and we can attest that the President John Mahama is building a new Ghana; a Ghana we all want and can be proud of.

From a more stable economy and strengthened currency to youth-focused policies, the achievements are visible. The National Apprenticeship Programme is equipping young people with practical skills, while Adwumawura is training young entrepreneurs and supporting businesses with grants. The One Million Coders Programme is opening doors to digital skills and future jobs. The No Fees Stress Policy is easing the financial burden on tertiary students, while the Free Sanitary Pad Initiative is helping millions of girls stay in school. The 24-Hour Economy is creating new opportunities for employment, and public-sector recruitment is opening doors for qualified young people. These policies, among many others, show that when we invest in the youth, we invest in both our party and Ghana's future.

Despite all these achievements, there is a lot more we can do. There is still more to be done, as the issue of youth unemployment persists. Indeed, our challenges and frustrations are real and legitimate. In my accountability show, NDC Talk Am, We Do Am!, I admitted these challenges even as I highlighted our many youth-related achievements.

We are therefore at a crossroads as a party. We can choose to allow our frustrations and unmet expectations to make us lay down our tools, or we can work deliberately towards meeting these expectations through the next phase of our party leadership and government.

The Green Army of the NDC has always chosen hope over despair. We have chosen the hard but productive path over the easy way out. Despite our real challenges, we have always found a way to emerge victorious. After all, Comrades, we are better and more hopeful in government than in opposition.

This is why I consulted many of you and listened to your views on how we can choose hope over despair. I wanted to understand how we can build a workable system that addresses our frustrations and meets our expectations.

I thank the five-member committee I established. Together, we have worked towards a system that serves you. As the theme of this Policy Book declares, we will build a Youth Wing that funds itself, feeds itself, grows its own leaders, cares for its members and, most importantly, opens more doors for comrades to work and earn a living.
I am confident in the proposals contained in this book because they came from you. I have heard your concerns, experienced your realities during my regional tours and resolved to lead an Army that will work day and night to deliver. I want to lead a Youth Wing that never neglects its members, especially when our party is in government.

Comrades, I emerge from you. Over 20 years of service across almost every layer of our party, especially in youth mobilisation, have taught me that leadership must listen, care and deliver. I have championed projects to address some of our challenges, and I pledge to continue these efforts with greater commitment.
Comrades, as you reflect on this foreword, I leave you with the charge that His Excellency John Dramani Mahama, President of the Republic, gave to the youth of our country in his address to the nation this year, on 1st January 2026:

"Young people, you are the leaders of today. Take ownership ... Innovate, create, and build!"

The President has called us the leaders of today, not of tomorrow. The Green Army must answer that call. Let us take ownership, and bring our energy, our creativity and our spirit of innovation to build a stronger Youth Wing and a better Ghana. Let us use that energy to retain power, for we are better off in power than in opposition. With power, there is hope to meet expectations.

Aluta Continua! Victoria Ascerta!
Victoriam Ad Victoriam!
God bless the Green Army. God bless the NDC. God bless Ghana.

Comrade Basiera Saankara
Your Comrade in the Struggle, with Sweat and Blood |
Aspiring Commander of the Green Army, AD 2026

Comrade Basiera Saankara

Comrade Saankara:

A Commander We Can Trust

In one of the pages of Paulo Coelho's Manuscript Found in Accra, a Copt addresses the people of the city on Love, Hope and many other subjects. A young man in the crowd disagrees with him:

"Your words are beautiful, but the truth is that we never have much choice. Life and our community have already taken charge of planning our fate."

An old man adds:

"And [we] can't go back and recover lost moments."

Comrades, before we accepted to join Team Saankara and work our hearts out, some of us shared these doubts. We were concerned about how the youth of our party had been cared for, listened to and engaged after our victory in 2024.

Like the Copt, Saankara sounded like one of us. He felt the pain of many of our comrades. But, again like the Copt, he did not spend his time lamenting. He took time to listen, then gave us a practical roadmap and invited us to join the Green Army in the work of keeping our party in power. He told us of his dream of a stronger Green Army, with a leadership that is more accessible to the comrades it serves.

We all heard him speak with passion about improving the architecture and operations of the Youth Wing of our party. Many of us later confessed that we were impressed by his deep knowledge of the affairs of the Youth Wing and his burning desire to serve our comrades. Saankara is truly one of us. He has a big heart. He is a unifier who respects everyone in his dealings. A proud son of Northern Ghana, he belongs to the whole Green Army and has built a stellar record of working for the good of all comrades, wherever they come from. We have experienced first-hand how accessible he is, how tolerant of divergent views, how humble and how remarkably unshakeable under pressure. He is a selfless warrior who puts the happiness of his people above his own.

In him we have found a true leader and a dedicated Commander who will stop at nothing to make justice and our collective interest reign supreme. We believe he is the right Commander for the times in which we find ourselves, and he has the full support of us all.

Comrades, we therefore urge you to stand with us and give Comrade Saankara your full support as the next Commander of the Green Army.
One Army. One Voice. One Commander: Saankara!

COMMITMENTS TO THE GREEN ARMY

This policy framework is the product of extensive consultations with the gallant Youth of the Party, Youth Organisers, Deputy Youth Organisers, other Youth Representatives and former executives at every level of the organisation, from branch and constituency to regional and national structures.

Every challenge identified in this document emerged directly from these engagements. Likewise, every proposed solution has been carefully considered and tested against experiences, aspirations, needs and expectations of the very people these policies are intended to serve. As such, this framework reflects not only a response to existing challenges, but also a collective vision for a stronger, more effective, and more inclusive youth movement within the Party

THE GREEN ARMY FUND (NDC-GAF)

The NDC Youth Welfare and Support Fund

"A fund that stands by young comrades in times of need and supports the work of the Youth Wing."

WHAT IT IS

A welfare and support fund for the National Youth Wing. It gives young members practical help when they face hardship, such as bereavement, illness, accidents or other emergencies, and it supports the Wing's training, projects and activities. The Fund draws on several sources, set out below, so that support is always available when a comrade needs it.

HOW IT WORKS

This will be a pool of funds from various sources

- A national fundraising event will be organised within the first 120 days in office to raise the initial capital to establish the Fund. Party faithful, private-sector actors and other relevant stakeholders will be invited, and the contributions raised will form the seed fund.

- We will advocate for a fixed percentage of dues paid by members of the Youth Wing to be paid into the Fund. This is predictable and will form part of the base inflow.

- Periodic contributions from young appointees in government, at a level sanctioned by the functional executive committee and the Office of the President, will be a reliable source to sustain the Fund.

- Part of proceeds from the Youth Wing farms will go into the Fund.

- Former youth leaders. A standing appeal to former youth organisers and executives in the party, in business and in public service, who have a record to give back.
- Returns from the Fund itself. Start-up support to youth enterprises is treated as risk capital and recovered over time, so the Fund recycles rather than depletes.

THE PROBLEM

The Youth Wing has no money of its own. When a young comrade falls into difficulty, support is raised by passing the cup around. Worse still, the welfare and support of young people have been neglected both in opposition and in power. In opposition there is little to give; in government, priorities shift elsewhere. Either way, the young people who carry the party on their shoulders are left to fend for themselves. The NDC-GAF ends that by giving the Youth Wing its own resources, whichever side of power the party is on.

WHAT IT ACHIEVES

- Welfare support for young comrades in need, and resources for the Wing's training, projects and activities.
- More money for the party, not less, because collection is fixed at the source.
- A register of paid-up members that settles who is a member of the Youth Wing.
- Multiple inflows, so the Wing does not depend on just a single source.

GREEN HARVEST
The NDC Youth Farms

“The Green Army goes into farming, and the harvest funds the Wing.”

WHAT IT IS
A national farming programme run by the Youth Wing designated to support the Government’s flagship Feed Ghana Programme and Nkoko Nkitinkiti Project. Under this programme, the country shall be zoned according to comparative agricultural advantages, with designated areas for selected crop and poultry. Parts of the proceeds from the Green Harvest will be paid into the Green Army Fund (NDC-GAF).

THE PROBLEM
While the growing incidence of youth unemployment is being tackled from different angles, the potentials of agriculture remains largely untapped. At the same time, many NDC youth who are willing to own and drive Government's flagship programmes feel disconnected from their implementation.

HOW IT WORKS

- Under this programme, the country will be zoned according to comparative agricultural advantages, with designated areas for selected crop and poultry.
- Land is secured through constituency youth wings, traditional authorities and district assemblies.
- Inputs and extension support are sourced through existing government agricultural programmes.
- Proceeds are paid into the NDC-GAF on an agreed share, with accounts published.

WHAT IT ACHIEVES

- Encourages Youth in Agriculture.
- Supports NDC government initiative
- Builds financially independent Youth Wing that has diverse source of revenue.
- Government agricultural programmes put to work by the young people they were designed for.

"An army that feeds itself cannot be starved."

THE JOHN MAHAMA YOUNG LEADERS FELLOWSHIP (JM FELLOWS)

The NDC Youth Leadership Training and Mentorship Programme

“We will not just train young leaders. We will keep them and deploy them for the benefit of the Part and the Nation.”

WHAT IT IS

The JM Fellowship Programme will identify, train, mentor, and deploy promising young NDC members into mainstream Party structures at the branch, constituency, regional, and national levels. Modelled after international leadership fellowship programmes, the initiative will combine leadership training, mentorship, ideological orientation, and practical political experience. Every Fellow will be assigned a role within the Party, ensuring that training translates into service, growth, and leadership

THE PROBLEM

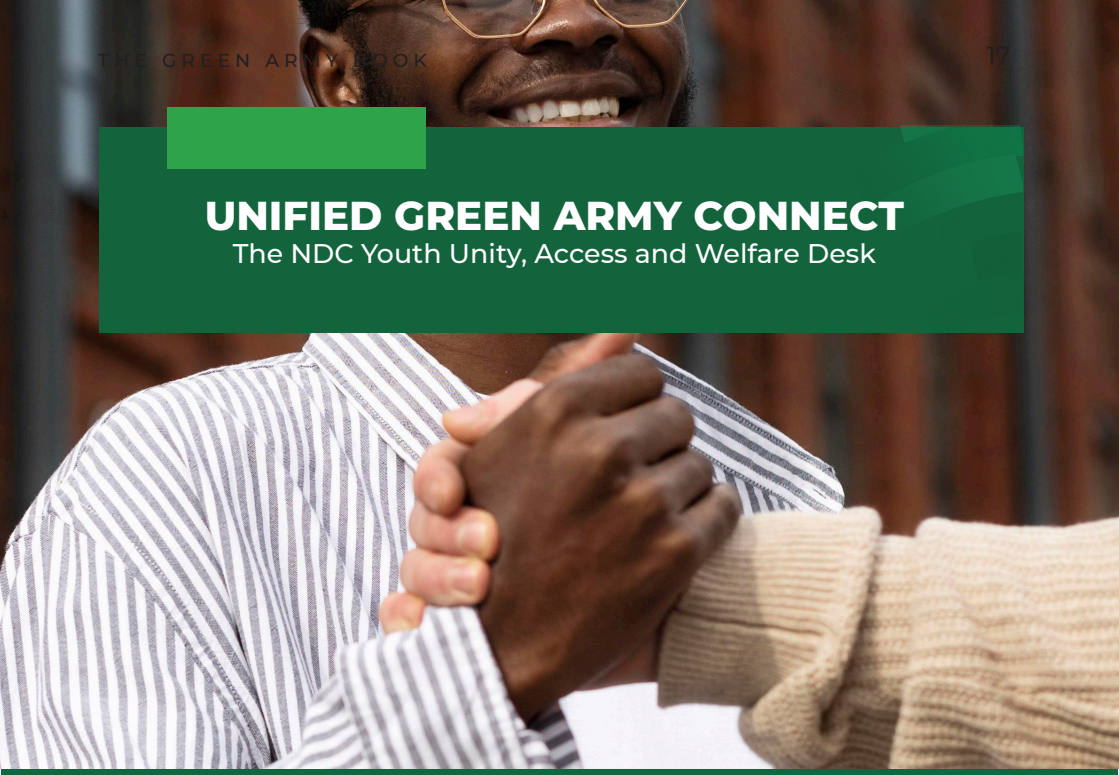
The Party has served as a platform to nurture many young talents over the years, yet, many are left without a clear pathway into leadership and active service within the NDC. As a result, valuable skills, energy, and commitment are often lost, creating a gap between leadership development and leadership deployment.

HOW IT WORKS

- Regular intakes ending with a practical assignment.
- Participants set goals on entry and are measured against them on exit.
- Trainers are drawn from the party, the professions and partner institutions.
- Fellows are tracked and placed in branch, constituency or regional roles.
- Members are supported to attend international conferences.
- JM Fellows will partner fellowships across Africa and beyond to run exchange programmes, giving Fellows exposure to other democracies, movements and institutions.
- JM Fellows will collaborate with the Ghana Institute of Social Democracy (NDC Party School) and other allied groups to ground every Fellow in the ideology, history and values of the party.

WHAT IT ACHIEVES

- A leadership pipeline the party owns.
- Young leaders grounded in social democracy and exposed to the best of the continent and the world.
- The programme will also preserve and promote the transformational leadership values of H. E. John Dramani Mahama, inspiring a new generation of young leaders to advance the democratic, social justice, and the people-centered ideals of a contemporary NDC.



UNIFIED GREEN ARMY CONNECT

The NDC Youth Unity, Access and Welfare Desk

WHAT IT IS

A permanent support and engagement system that keeps the Youth Wing united and its leadership accessible. It gives every young member a clear point of contact for guidance, assistance, and support, whether through a simple phone call or during a personal crisis. It also brings comrades together across constituencies and regions, ensuring that the Green Army remains one family before, during, and after every internal contest.

THE PROBLEM

When we asked members of the Youth Wing at the grassroots what they needed most from their leaders, the answer was simple: someone who answers the call. Too often, calls go unanswered, concerns go unheard, and comrades facing personal challenges are left to struggle alone. A leader who cannot be reached cannot effectively lead. At the same time, internal contests can create divisions which, if left unaddressed, weaken the Youth Wing when unity is needed most. The absence of a structured support and reconciliation system leaves many members feeling disconnected from both the Party and its leadership.

HOW IT WORKS

- The Communications Centre set up during the 2024 elections under the National Youth Wing will be kept active after victory and put to good use. It becomes the home of this desk, so members can still reach their leaders and get support.

- There will be dedicated Green Army line, on phone and WhatsApp, answered by the leadership of the Youth Wing at the regional and national levels.

- Youth Wing Welfare focal persons in every region will attend to members facing bereavement, illness, legal issues or other personal difficulty.

- Members who need counselling or professional help are referred to trusted partners.

- Regular open forums, in person and online, where members will interact directly with the national leadership.

WHAT IT ACHIEVES

- Leaders who are reachable, and members who feel heard.
- Comfort and practical support for comrades in difficult moments.
- A Youth Wing held together as one family at every point - before, during and after a contest.

GREEN ARMY RISE

The NDC Youth Resource and Opportunities Network

WHAT IT IS

A Youth Wing that provides logistical support to youth structures and connects young members to employment, training, business, and mentorship opportunities. It leverages the experience, influence, and professional networks of employed NDC members to create pathways for the next generation.

THE PROBLEM

The Youth Wing structures do not get timely access to the basic resources required to organize and mobilize effectively. At the same time, many are unemployed or struggling to access opportunities for growth and advancement.

While many NDC youth members are already employed and willing to support others, there is currently no structured system to connect opportunities with those who need them. As a result, valuable networks, expertise, and goodwill remain underutilized.

HOW IT WORKS

The National Youth Wing will mobilize resources and logistics on time from donors, the Green Army Fund (NDC-GAF) and well-placed members to support Youth Wing activities across the country.

Employed members and professionals within the Party will be encouraged to share job openings, internship placements, training programmes, scholarships, and business opportunities through the Youth Wing.
A central database will match young members with available opportunities based on their qualifications, skills, and interests.
Opportunities and resources will be channelled through branch, constituency, regional, and national youth structures to ensure fairness, transparency, and nationwide reach.

WHAT IT ACHIEVES

A better-resourced Youth Wing and a stronger pathway for young NDC members to access jobs, skills, and economic opportunities.

One Youth Wing that funds itself, feeds itself, grows its own leaders, cares for its members and opens doors to work.

FUND IT.
FEED IT.
LEAD IT.
CARE FOR IT.
EMPOWER IT.

COMMITMENTS TO TEIN

These policies are the products of extensive consultation conducted by a committee of TEIN leaders, former TEIN leaders, student leaders and young activists of the party.
Over a period of one month, the committee gathered data and conducted interviews with TEIN leaders and members, as well as Party executive who work closely with TEIN at every level, from branch and constituency, through regional and national structures.
Every challenge identified in this document emerged directly from these consultations.

THE TEIN RULEBOOK

Constitution and Structures

TEIN governed by one set of rules: a single constitution for all chapters, and coordinating structures with clear duties to serve members.

THE PROBLEM

TEIN operates without a single, binding constitutional framework. Rules governing membership, qualifications, elections, accountability, and discipline vary from one campus to another, creating inconsistency and confusion across chapters.

The Party Constitution provides limited recognition of TEIN, while chapters often operate without clear guidance or oversight. As a result, disputes over membership, elections, and governance frequently escalate because there are no universally accepted rules to resolve them. At the same time, members often turn to Coordinating Officers for support and intervention, yet their roles and responsibilities are not clearly defined, leading to frustration, inaction, and weak accountability.

HOW IT WORKS

The Unified TEIN Constitution

Within the first one hundred and twenty (120) days, a Constitutional Committee will be established to engage TEIN chapters and Patrons across all institutions and develop a single Constitution to govern TEIN nationwide.

- A drafting committee, comprising lawyers from within the Youth Wing and constitutional experts, will lead the process.
- Extensive consultations will be held with all TEIN institutions that currently operate under their own constitutions.
- The new Constitution will provide clear and uniform rules on membership, qualifications, elections, functions, discipline, accountability, and financial management, while allowing limited flexibility where institutional regulations require it.
- The Constitution will be adopted through a National TEIN Festival and subsequently approved by the National Executive Committee (NEC).

- The Party Constitution will be amended to formally recognize TEIN, its structures, and its constitutional framework.

WHAT IT ACHIEVES

- The financial arrangements written into the rules rather than left to practice.
- Formal standing for TEIN inside the party, and a basis for further structural reforms of the wing.
- Ends confusion from different rules on different campuses.
- Sets the same standard for who can join and contest everywhere.
- Clearly defines the duties of Coordinating Officers, Patrons and others.

EVERY MEMBER COUNTED

The National TEIN Identity Card and Database

WHAT IT IS

One identity card for every TEIN member, in the same form as the NDC national identity card, displaying the member's institution. This card remains valid after the member completes school, and it is linked to one central register.

THE PROBLEM

Currently, TEIN chapters produce their own membership cards, resulting in different standards across campuses. As a result, there is no credible register of TEIN members, making verification and identification of members a source of dispute. In addition, TEIN members are required to pay dues, at both the chapter level through the branch to national, resulting in double payment.

HOW IT WORKS

- A single card design, issued centrally, carrying the member's name, institution and membership number.
- The card is issued on payment of dues and doubles as proof of party membership.
- It stays valid after school, so a member moves into a branch without paying again.

- All records sit in one register that TEIN and the party can both read.

WHAT IT ACHIEVES
- Ensures cost-effectiveness
- Predictability and sustainability
- Elimination of double payment of dues.

TEIN CARES

The TEIN Festival, Community Impact and Voice

A community project from every chapter, and a voice to tell the story.

WHAT IT IS

This community project seeks to ensure that TEIN maintains presence within respective communities year-round. Every chapter will be expected to deliver a community project each semester.
The TEIN voice on the other hand will tell our story and keep records of our activities

THE PROBLEM

TEIN is visible at election time and invisible the rest of the year. Communities around our campuses see little of us, and floating voters see no reason to listen.
TEIN also has no voice of its own: achievements go unreported, creative writers have nowhere to publish.

HOW IT WORKS

The TEIN Festival

A national event held every year, where TEIN members across the country converge for a festival. It blends learning with socialization, and shows that TEIN is a community of young people, not a forum for debate only.

- Held every year on a fixed date on the TEIN calendar.
- A national dialogue and a short conference on issues facing students and young people, led by members with invited speakers; a paper from every chapter on a theme set for the year, with the best recognized and published on TEIN Voice; inter-chapter debates and a quiz on Ghana, Africa, and the history and ideas of the party; and a briefing on the decisions of the Functional Executive Committee (FEC) and other organs of the party.
- Members meet alumni and leaders from the party, public service, business and the professions informally, and are linked with mentors. Allies of the party such as the Socialist International bring fraternal greetings
- Inter-chapter sports and fun games, music and entertainment, a cultural night with food and dress from every region, and time for members to simply meet and make friends across campuses.

The TEIN Community Impact Project

A community impact programme under which every chapter chooses and delivers one project each semester: a clean-up, volunteer teaching where a school has no teacher, a health screening, or a similar need identified locally.

- Each chapter selects its project and submits a simple one-page plan.
- Funding comes from the TEIN Fund, with other corporate and institutional support.
- Where a public institution is involved, chapters work with the head of that institution.
- Every project is filmed and carried on TEIN Voice.

TEIN Voice: The Centralised TEIN Press and Editorial

A central press platform for TEIN: a website, a YouTube channel, a magazine and standard letterheads, taking material from every chapter, with an editorial team.

- One website and channel, fed by chapter correspondents.
- An editorial team, with a magazine each semester carrying members' writing and blogs
- A public record of TEIN's positions, policies and records, which the media can verify.

- Standard letterheads and templates, so every chapter looks part of one organisation.

WHAT IT ACHIEVES

- Friendships across campuses that make TEIN one network, not separate chapters.
- Members who research, write and debate the issues that affect them.
- A reason for students who are not interested in politics to come, enjoy themselves and stay.
- Mentorship open to every member, not only to those selected as JM Fellows.
- Members who understand the decisions of the party and the reasons behind them
- Creates a vibrant national TEIN community where members connect beyond their individual campuses.
- Develops members' leadership communication, research, and critical thinking skills.
- A TEIN that is useful between elections.
- Goodwill with non-aligned students and with the communities around our campuses.
- Evidence that we can deliver, which is the argument for trusting us with more.
- Our story told by us.
- A fact-checking resource that protects TEIN and the party from falsehood.
- A training ground for young writers and broadcasters.

THE TEIN FUND

Welfare, Funding and Enterprise

WHAT IT IS

A dedicated welfare and development fund for TEIN, established as a sub-fund of the NDC Green Army Fund(NDC-GAF). The Fund provides financial support to members facing emergencies such as bereavement, illness, accidents, and other hardships. It also finances chapter projects, leadership training, and other TEIN activities

THE PROBLEM

TEIN lacks a reliable and sustainable source of funding. Membership dues are often collected through informal arrangements and in some instance, multiple times. This leads to weak accountability, poor record-keeping, and limited transparency. The Party has no comprehensive record of contributing members, and many students see little direct benefit from their contributions. As a result, when members face personal hardship or chapters need support for activities, assistance is often raised on an ad hoc basis, with no structured system to provide timely and reliable support.

HOW IT WORKS

- Membership dues will be streamlined and aligned with the Party's dues system, with clear guidelines on TEIN membership and eligibility.

- Members will pay dues directly through approved Party channels rather than through individual chapter executives.
- The Party will remit an agreed percentage of TEIN-related dues to the Youth Wing.
- A fixed portion of these funds will be allocated to the TEIN Fund.
- Additional income from donations, Green Harvest, and Campus Enterprise (two TEIN-led ventures) will be paid into the Fund.
- The Fund will be managed under clear governance and accountability rules to support member welfare, leadership development, and chapter activities across the country.

WHAT IT ACHIEVES

- Welfare support for TEIN members in need, and resources for chapter training, projects and activities.
- An accountable system for collection of dues and prevention of double payment by members.
- A record of paid-up membership that settles who is a member.
- Multiple income flows for TEIN.
- Business experience for members, and a reason for non-political students to join us.

THE JOHN MAHAMA YOUNG LEADERS FELLOWSHIP (JM FELLOWS)

The NDC Youth Leadership Training and Mentorship Programme

WHAT IT IS

The JM Fellowship Programme will make special arrangements for TEIN members and executives.

The programme will identify, train, mentor, and deploy promising young NDC members into mainstream Party structures at the branch, constituency, regional, and national levels.

Modelled on international leadership fellowship programmes, the initiative will combine leadership training, mentorship, ideological orientation, and practical political experience. TEIN members and executives who graduate will be assigned a role within the Party, ensuring that training translates into service, growth, and leadership

THE PROBLEM

The Party has served as a platform to nurture many talented TEIN members and executives over the years, yet, too many are left without a clear pathway into leadership and active service within the NDC. As a result, valuable skills, energy, and commitment are often lost, creating a gap between leadership development and leadership deployment.

HOW IT WORKS

The John Mahama Young Leaders Fellowship (JM Fellows)

A training and mentorship programme for TEIN members and student leaders, under the John Mahama Young Leaders Fellowship, modelled on established leadership fellowships, with one deliberate difference: every Fellow is placed into a mainstream party structure. JM Fellows will also carry forward the transformative leadership principles of H.E. John Dramani Mahama, sharing his ideals with a new generation of student leaders and advancing the contemporary ideology of the NDC.

- Regular intakes, ending with a practical assignment.
- Participants set goals on entry and are measured against them on exit.
- Trainers are drawn from the party, the professions and partner institutions.
- Fellows are tracked and placed in branch, constituency or regional roles.
- Members are supported to attend international conferences.
- Continental and international partnerships. JM Fellows will partner with established fellowships across Africa and beyond to run exchange programmes for TEIN Fellows.
- JM Fellows will collaborate with the Ghana Institute of Social Democracy (NDC Party School) and other allied groups to ground every Fellow in the ideology, history and values of the party.

WHAT IT ACHIEVES

- Further growth and leadership training for TEIN members and executives.
- Effective identification and use of talent emerging from the TEIN structure.
- Young talent and future leaders within TEIN will be exposed to transformational leadership values of H. E John Dramani Mahama and the ideals of a contemporary NDC.
